General context: Overview of the BTR planning and development process

- With the implementation of the ETF of the Paris Agreement, countries are called to present their first BTR, in accordance with the MPGs, no later than December 31, 2024.
- BTRs will provide information on actions taken and progress made in mitigation, adaptation, and support provided, required, or received.
- The information collected through the BTR will be incorporated into the global stocktake, which will evaluate the collective progress toward long-term climate goals.
- The transition towards BTR and MPGs implies an increase in the quantity, detail, and rigor of the information to be presented, mainly for developing countries.
- For this reason, it is of utmost importance that countries begin to analyze their current arrangements and capabilities and generate action plans to meet deadlines committed to 2024.

Support activity for 1BTR planning

- CBIT-GSP has been conducting different activities to support countries in their first steps. Among other activities
 - Supported countries in conducting scoping studies in preparation for their First BTR development
 - Supported countries in conducting assessments on institutional arrangements in preparation for their First BTR development
 - Supported countries in the development of a roadmap for the first BTR using the BTR Tool that PATPA and FAO developed.
 - The roadmap generates an upfront outlook of how the country intends to implement the BTR.
 - Conducted capacity-building webinars to help countries understand procedures for accessing funding resources through enabling activity agencies.
